Building a Scalable Data Warehouse with Data Vault 2.0 Dan Linstedt, Michael Olschimke, 2015-09-15 The Data Vault was invented by Dan Linstedt at the U.S. Department of Defense, and the standard has been successfully applied to data warehousing projects at organizations of different sizes, from small to large-size corporations. Due to its simplified design, which is adapted from nature, the Data Vault 2.0 standard helps prevent typical data warehousing failures. Building a Scalable Data Warehouse covers everything one needs to know to create a scalable data warehouse end to end, including a presentation of the Data Vault modeling technique, which provides the foundations to create a technical data warehouse layer. The book discusses how to build the data warehouse incrementally using the agile Data Vault 2.0 methodology. In addition, readers will learn how to create the input layer (the stage layer) and the presentation layer (data mart) of the Data Vault 2.0 architecture including implementation best practices. Drawing upon years of practical experience and using numerous examples and an easy to understand framework, Dan Linstedt and Michael Olschimke discuss: How to load each layer using SQL Server Integration Services (SSIS), including automation of the Data Vault loading processes. Important data warehouse technologies and practices. Data Quality Services (DQS) and Master Data Services (MDS) in the context of the Data Vault architecture. Provides a complete introduction to data warehousing, applications, and the business context so readers can get-up and running fast Explains theoretical concepts and provides hands-on instruction on how to build and implement a data warehouse Demystifies data vault modeling with beginning, intermediate, and advanced techniques Discusses the advantages of the data vault approach over other techniques, also including the latest updates to Data Vault 2.0 and multiple improvements to Data Vault 1.0

HPC@Green IT Ralf Gruber, Vincent Keller, 2010-03-15 Making the most efficient use of computer systems has rapidly become a leading topic of interest for the computer industry and its customers alike. However, the focus of these discussions is often on single, isolated, and specific architectural and technological improvements for power reduction and conservation, while ignoring the fact that power efficiency as a ratio of performance to power consumption is equally influenced by performance improvements and architectural power reduction. Furthermore, efficiency can be influenced on all levels of today's system hierarchies from single cores all the way to distributed Grid environments. To improve execution and power efficiency requires progress in such diverse fields as program optimization, optimization of program scheduling, and power reduction of idling system components for all levels of the system hierarchy. Improving computer system efficiency requires improving system performance and reducing system power consumption. To research and reach reasonable conclusions about system performance we need to not only understand the architectures of our computer systems and the available array of code transformations for performance optimizations, but we also need to be able to express this understanding in performance models good enough to guide decisions about code optimizations for specific systems. This understanding is necessary on all levels of the system hierarchy from single cores to nodes to full high performance computing (HPC) systems, and eventually to Grid environments with multiple systems and resources.
